SUPPRESSION OF GROG SHOPS.

The following is the report of the Assembly Committee on the Internal Affairs of Towns and Counties, on the petitions for a law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors as a on Internal Affairs of Towns and Counties, to which was referred the petitions for a law prohibiting the sale or gift of intoxicating drinks as a beverage, reports: reports: That after a careful examination of the subject have come to the conclusion that a stringent restrictive law is the only one that can be of any use to remove the evils complained of.

That tippling shops, groggeries and bar rooms are great evils, few, if any, of the present day, will deny, and that a law that will entirely suppress them is the law now demanded by your petitioners of this Legislature.

The error in days past has been the attempt to regu-late what time has shown could not be duly regulated, but could and should be prohibited.

Unlike the government of the old world, which raise revenue by licensing vice, the moral sense of this community demands a prohibition, and of none more than the vice of drunkard making, and a traffic which latter.

Your Committee are aware, that a new doctrine has recently been advanced, that the Legislature has no right to interfere with moral questions; if this be true right to interfere with moral questions; if this be true then nearly all legislation must cease, for nearly all elgislation must cease, for nearly all of it has a moral aspect. But waiving this question of moral legislation, it is the duty of the Legislature to interfere for other reasons, and because the unrestrained use of intoxicating liquor is, in the large towns especially, corrupting the purity of elections, and is in our whole state the fruitful source of corruption, psuperism and crime. Unless facts and figures lie, unless the confession of convicts and psupers are a tissue of falsehoods, and usless we disbelieve every sense, nine tenths of the crime against the person, and four faiths of the pauperism, and a large proportion of taxation of this data is clearly trucesale to intemperance. And we ask, whether this state of things is to be endured, that a few men may be engished by a traffe productive only of evil, or because the candidates of the gutter and the poor-house insist on the right to ruin themselves, burden society or disturb its peace.

The objection that others' rights are invaded is not true, for no man has a right to injure society, and the bill we propose to present for your consideration recognizes the sanctity of every man's dwelling there, he must be left to the indulgence of his cups, not because it is right, but because no law but the moral law can reach him. Your Committee have witnessed the remedial legislation so frefuge and other kindred institutions; and it has occurred to them that it would be better to strike at the root of the evil at once and remove the great cause which render such institutions occurred to the result of the remove the great cause which render such institutions peculiarly than to spend time and money in attempting to remedy than to spend time and money in attempting to remedy ter to strike at the root of the evil at once and remove the great causes which render such institutions necessary, than to spend time and money in attempting to remedy what cannot in this way be remedied. Taey submit that the true course is not to legislate around evils but directly against them.

Your Committee are not without proof of the healthy operation of a prohibitory law. A slaver State has tried one and the result is, for less commitments to the jalls and penifications, and their poor houses are nearly tenantiess, other States have taken a similar course. Is the Empire State so fond of the evils and lurdens of internerance that she is unwilling to try a similar law. Is it to be believed that each a law cannot be enforced and is it true that the State of New York, so proud of her integrity, her power, her patriciam and her greatness, a State that knows no fear of a foreign fee, and which has increibed on her banner Excelsion—is it true that such a State has a fee within her own borders, which she dares not attack? Must we say to the vives, the mothers and daughters who are beneeching us for protection for their freeddes, that their little ones may not be rendered more than orphuse, that their sons may be seved from a drunkard's door and their husbands from the descroying power of the intercicating cup, that we can hold out to the one of breach, and when your mora how. ards doom and their huseands front the destroying power of the intoxicating cup, that we can hold out to you no bow of hope? And waless your own moral pow-er can save them, they must be lost; for though we can face every other foe, we cannot face the screent worm of the still. Is this to be the answer of this Legislature to the imploring thousands who have petitioned this body for a law prohibiting the traffic in intoxicating drinks as a beverace?

body for a law premining the trains in inducesning drinks as a beverage!
Your Committee believe the people would sustain a proper law, and that the prayer of the petitioners ought to be granted. We therefore respectfully present the following hill and recommend its passage.
P. W. ROSE. J. O. PETENGILL, CHARLES T. ROGERS.

The bill is essentially the same as that submitted by the Executive Committee of the New-York State Temperance Alliance, and published in The Tribune some weeks ago.

Principles and Effects not Patentable. The Supreme Court of the United States has just decided that Principles, or a new Power, or new results cannot be patented, but only the processes by which the new result is obtained. Judge McLean, in announcing the opinion of a majority of the Court, said :

The word Principle is used by elementary writers on patent subjects, and sometimes in adjudications of Courts with such a want of precision in its application as to mislead. It is admitted that a principle is not putentiable. A principle in the abstract is a fundamental truth, an original cause, a motive; these cannot be patented, as no one can claim in either of them an exclusive right with the intention of making it property in Frankfort with the intention of making it ready known. Through the agency of machinery, a sew steam power may be said to have been generated, but no one can approprise this power exclusively to himself under the patent laws. The same may be said of electricity, and of any other power in nature, which is alike open to all and may be applied to useful purposes by the use of machinery in all such cases the processes used to extract, modify and concentrate natural agencies constitute the is contion. The elements of the power exist, the invention is not in discovering them, but in applying them to the useful objects. Whether the machinery used be novel, or consist of a new combination of parts known, the right of the inventor is secured against all who use the same mechanical power or one that shall be substantially the same. A patent is not good for an effect or the result of a certain process, as that would prohibit all other persons from making the same thing by any means whatever. This by creating monopoles would discourage arts and manufactures against the aroused policy of the parent laws.

A new property discovered in matter, when practically applied in the construction of a useful article of commerce or manufacture is patentable, but the process through which the new property is developed and applied must be stated with such precision as to enable an ordinary mechanic to construct and apply the necessary process. This is required by the patent laws of England and of the United States, in order that when the patent shall run out the public may know how to profit by the invention."

Philadelithia, Monday, March 28, 1853.

It is well for humanity, that mousters like Spring, the murderer, but rarely appear upon the stage of human life. Probably once in an age, such a being is permitted to exist as a beacon to apprise mankind to what a depth of degradation humanity can sink by a long includence in crime. This morning, when the Marshal's officers, who all along have had the prisoner in charge, went into his cell, they found him stretched out on his pallet, upon his back, with his eyes partially opened, and set in his head as if he was about to give up the ghost. They shook him, but were answered merely with a suppressed groan.

His pulse was felt by one of the officers who has had some experience in such matters, and he was immediated.

For Col. Jaques, who resides at the Ten Hill Farm in Medford, Mass. has a novel way of obtaining wild ducks. Yesterday he had an accession to ten to his ficek. Last fall almost thirty wild ducks were ensaured in Maine and captured alive, their wings were ensaured in Maine and captured alive, their wings were elipped to prevent their sessope, and thus they gradually became domesticated. Cot. Jaques, who is a naturalist as well as an excellent farmer, purchased them and carried them to his farm, where they were at liberty to roam over acres of marsh and upland; they became accustomed to his call, and do not now manifest the least disposition to emigrate. If a stranger enters the yard, they manifest the utmost slarm and make an attempt to fly. By their peculiar call, and the freedom which they enjoy to traverse the margin of the Mystic River and the marshes, they attract other wild darks, which make a shy descent and remain for a time, then take to Sight, but not being ularmed, repeat their vists; then they lay their eggs, and finally become accustomed to the call of the Colonel, who will not suffer them to be mulested, and remain upon the premises. Fosterday ten ducks came from ponds in Medford, and are now on his premises. So says The Boston Chronicle.

MIDSHIPMEN FOR 1853.—The apportionment of the midshipmen to the several States for the current year has been made out by the Secretary of the Navy. It appears from this document that Massachusetts is ento 19 218 198th midshipmen, and has 17 in the service—a vancies, one of which can be given to either the 3d, 5th, or 7th District; the other, by law, must be given to the 9th. Maine is entitled to 12 154 238ths midshipmen, and has 13 in the service—only a fractional vacancy. Connectivat is entitled to 7 199-238ths, and has now 5 midshipmen in the service—asking 2 vacancies, which can be filled from two of the Districts having only 1, vir: the 1st, 3d, or th. New Hampshire is entitled to 7 190-238ths, which can be given to either the 2d or 4th District. Vermont is entitled to 7 190-238ths midshipmen, and has 7 in the service; only a fractional vacancy exists. Rhode Island is entitled to 3 224-238ths midshipmen, and has 2 in the service; only a fractional vacancy exists. MIDSHIPHEN FOR 1853 .- The apportionme

When brought up to Court about 7 o'clock, the crowd, which had already assembled, opened a passage way to the Court room, through which the officers conducted the prisoner, and placed him in the box within the Court room. He are a couple of soft boiled again drank a cup of tea for breakfast. After he again went into the box, he manifested a great desire to communicate with those persons who stood near him.

The vitest language that could flow from his lips springing from the black malignity of his heart, was used to define the characters of every one who was in the least connected with his conviction. For this purpose, he even admitted himself guilty of incest with an infant member of his own family, and with his postilential break), attempted to ingesschithe reputation of every had manifested upon former occasions. The officers, however, were in great force, and kept the crowd back by loud crise of "stand back," without having to use any other force than pushing.

The prisoner was placed in the cab, amid shouts and groans, and when the cab started for the prison, a furious "yell" went up from the mass, followed by an awrid groan. Beside the crowd in Sixthest, the iron railings along that street inclosing the State House yard, were packed with human beings, who also joined in the "yell and groans."

were packed with human beings, who also joined in the "yell and groans."
The cab drove rapidly away, and in a short time, the street and yard were partially cleared of the mass of people who had been there congregated.

On the way to prison the prisoner behaved in the most insolent manner to the officers who attended him. He said, "he did not care for public opinion," and admitted that the "story he told, this morning, about the little femsle member of his family was a lie, only stated for the purpose of making them anary."

His feelings were much more bitter against his son than they have yet been. He said, "he would curse him with his last gasp," and declared, "that if his son was to go to heaven, he did not want to go there; but that there was little danger of young Arthur going there."

Since Saturday last, it has been currently reported that Carson Emmos, one of the persons convicted of the murder of Christopher Soohan, had made a full confession of the terrible deed. Both him and John Capie, his companion in crime, are much depressed in spirit, now evidently feeling keenly their dreadful situation. A relative of one of the downed men has become insane, and is now an immate of an insane asylum. Such has been the effect upon his mind, in consequence of the conviction of the parties, he feeling a great strachment toward them.
